More than 9 years ago, we started One-Software.com with the sole purpose of posting freeware applications that are of extreme use to regular PC users. Over the past 9 years we have grown tremendously and now have a library of over 45,000 freeware programs (including various shareware applications as well) and more than 11,000 commercial applications that were deemed necessary and of extreme use to regular computer users. This device has a fairly large 5.84-inch IPS LCD and a starting price of £399 / AU$699. This is the higher-end device with a 5.84-inch IPS LCD screen, a rear fingerprint scanner, dual cameras, a rear-mounted fingerprint scanner, a headphone jack and power button on the side. There's also the same removable back cover as we mentioned earlier, so you can keep the battery and modem in the device. For what it's worth, there's no front-facing stereo speakers here, but there are two on the back. The Honor 10 is a device that's very solid on the looks and feel side, but
